Conflict of Interest and Incentives

DUX Financial Services and our financial advisers receive commissions from the providers on whose products we give financial advice (the insurers, banks and KiwiSaver providers).

If you decide to take out insurance or a mortgage, or to take our KiwiSaver advice, the provider will pay a commission to DUX Financial Services and to your financial adviser. The amount of commission is based on the amount of the premium or mortgage, or the KiwiSaver balance. From time to time, product providers may also reward us for the overall business we provide to them. They may give us tickets to sports events, hampers, or other incentives. To ensure that our financial advisers prioritise the client's interests above their own, we follow an advice process that ensures our recommendations are made based on the client's goals and circumstances.

Our philosophy at DUX Financial is to give sustainable financial advice that benefits clients in the long term. This in turn results in happy clients who refer their friends and family to us, which has allowed us to grow our business over many years. This philosophy flows through into how we recruit and train all our financial advisers. If an individual adviser gives financial advice focused only to short term gains for the adviser and nothing for the client, they will not work at DUX Financial.

All our financial advisers undergo annual training about how to manage conflicts of interest. We maintain registers of conflicts of interests, and the gifts and incentives we receive. DUX Financial Services monitors these registers and provides additional training where necessary. DUX Financial Services performs an annual review of our compliance programme.

DUX undergoes a quarterly review of product providers to maintain their suitability for our clients.

DUX undergoes a quarterly review of product providers to maintain their suitability for our clients.

Conflicted Remuneration Note:

- All fees and commissions are paid to DUX Financial Services and or the adviser
- DUX Financial Services and the adviser uses all gross revenue to pay the operating expenses of running a compliant professional business
- DUX Financial Services then pays its' tax obligations on the "net profit" after costs
- What is left, if any, is available to the adviser as personal remuneration – who then pays Tax on that.
- Typically, the potential conflicted remuneration for the Financial Adviser amounts to between 35-50% of gross revenue in any given year. What a client pays is not the same as what the Financial Adviser earns
